

WHAT WE DO

www.sgmrg.co.uk

Aerial Surveys

Help us locate sites - here a possible site for Arnold's pit. We will need to approach the landowner for consent before going on site.

Oral History

Gathering stories from former miners and their families helps identify sites, explain what we find and tells us about the things that don't leave physical remains.

Research in the Archives

Help us to locate documents and maps in the archives (and in people's attics) which give details about past mining locally and can be related to the remains we see today.

Surveying & Excavation

Finding evidence on the ground

Conservation

Preserving surviving remains and artefacts.

Communicating our findings

Through exhibitions, newsletters, books, talks, open days. If you know of a group or place that would like an exhibition or a talk, please tell us.
